Building a Safer, More Prepared Community

Emergency preparedness is an important part of community safety.

Our department is sharing information about the Community Safety Initiative, which combines safety education with an innovative approach to helping neighbors facing unexpected emergencies.

At the center of the Initiative are Safety Bandana-Guides—portable, durable emergency reference tools covering topics such as first aid, personal safety, home safety, and other preparedness subjects.

The Initiative also establishes community-based emergency assistance funds called Bandana-Guide SafetyNets.

When residents purchase participating Safety Bandana-Guides, a portion of the purchase proceeds is reserved for the SafetyNet associated with their Safety Code.
For most residents, the Safety Code is simply their ZIP code.

As funds become available and local administration is established, the SafetyNet is intended to provide limited, temporary assistance to neighbors experiencing genuine emergencies.

The program is designed to complement, rather than replace, existing emergency services and community assistance organizations.
